On his second release, Revelry, pianist Ken Elkinson uses a similar recipe as he did on his debut CD, Midnight Conversation: solo piano, powerful and sweeping chords with occasional minor chords thrown in for emphasis.

On the title track, Elkinson gives off an air of elegance, using one hand to create a repetitive foundation while confidently plucking out notes with another. The somber tone of "Solutions" seems to embrace a more melancholic mood than it does one of optimism and working out a situation.

Elkinson's rock influence surfaces on a cover of Jimi Hendrix's "Little Wing." But instead of ripping it up like Jerry Lee Lewis, Elkinson transforms the composition into a beautiful elegy.
